

SCHOOL OF LAW FACULTY
share their expertise not only in the classroom but also through scholarly publications and presentations.

FOLLOWING IS A SAMPLING OF THEIR RECENT ACTIVITIES.

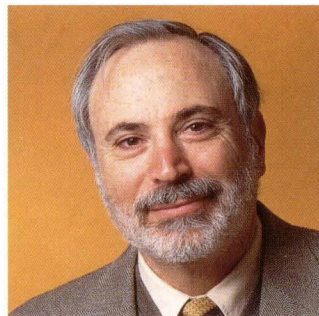

TAUNYA BANKS, professor, presented “Media Appearance vs. Legal Reality: Women Judges in Contemporary Television Court Shows,” as part of the “Photography and Imaging Guest Lecture Series” at New York University, in November; and “Status of the Black Reparations Movement in the United States,” at Monash University, Melbourne, Australia, last year. She authored reviews and commentaries on the movie “Legally Blonde” and the 2001 premiere television episode of “The Practice” for the “Picturing Justice Roundtables” in Picturing Justice: The Online Journal of Law and Popular Culture at www.usfca.edu/pj.

BARBARA BEZDEK, associate professor, published “Contractual Welfare: Non-Accountability and Diminished Democracy in Local Government Contracts for Welfare-to-Work Services,” 28

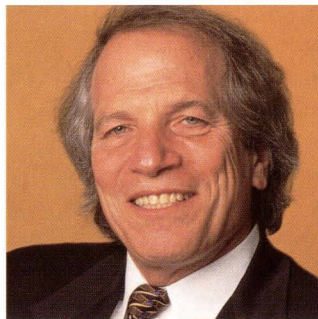

Fordham Urban Law Journal 1559 (2001).

DAVID BOGEN, professor, presented “Requiring Experiential Learning: The Maryland Experience,” at Murdoch University, Murdoch, Western Australia, in November; and “Politics and the Supreme Court,” to the Faculty of Law and Justice at Southern Cross University, Lismore, New South Wales, Australia, in August. He published “Mathias de Sousa: Maryland’s First Colonist of African Descent,” 96 Maryland Historical Magazine 68 (2001).

HUNGDAH CHIU, professor and general editor, published “Socio-Economic Changes and Modernization in an Age of Uncertainty: Taiwan in the 1900’s and Its Future Challenge,” 1 (162) Maryland Series in Contemporary Asian Studies (2001).

DOUGLAS COLBERT, professor, made the following presentations: “The Constitutionalization of the Ineffective Assistance of Counsel,” at the annual meeting of the Association of American Law Schools, in San Francisco, in January 2001; “Reforming Maryland’s Bail and Pretrial Release Practices” at the Maryland State Bar Association’s 2001 annual meeting; “The Importance of Prosecuting Hate Crimes” and “A Historic Context for Appreciating Hate Crimes and Local Prosecutors Crucial Role,” both at the University’s “Victims’ Rights Conference” in April 2001; and “Scholarship in the Name of Law Reform,” at the annual meeting of the Association of Clinical Law Professors in Montreal, Canada, in May 2001.

KAREN CZAPANSKIY, professor, presented “Parents, Children, and Work—First Welfare Reform, or Where Is the C in TANF?”; and “Introduction and Overview of Government Benefits for Low- and No-Income Families,” at the conference “Welfare Reform Ends in 2002: What’s Ahead for Low- and No-Income Families?” sponsored by the School of Law in October.

DEBORAH HELLMAN, associate professor, published “Judging by Appearances: Professional Ethics, Expressive Government, and the Moral Significance of How Things Seem,” 60 Maryland Law Review 3 (2001).

DIANE HOFFMANN, associate dean, director of the Law and Health Care Program and professor, presented “Legal Issues in End of Life Care: What’s New?” at the “End of Life Care Symposium,” at Sinai Hospital, Baltimore, in November; and “The Impact of OIG Fraud Alerts on End of Life Care,” at the annual “Health Law Teachers Conference,” at Boston University School of Law in June 2001.

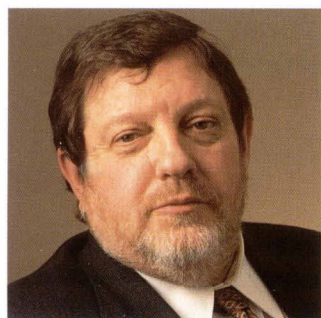

DAVID HYMAN, professor, co-authored “Just What the Patient Ordered: The Case for Result-Based Compensation in Health Care,” 29 Journal of Law Medicine & Ethics 170 (2001) (with Charles Silver). He presented “Health Care Fraud and HIPAA: Where’s the Beef,” at the “Making a Federal Case out of Health Care: Five Years of HIPAA” conference, sponsored by the Cato Institute, in Washington, D.C., in July.

PAULA MONOPOLI, visiting professor of law, presented “A Conceptual Approach to Reforming Probate,” at Santa Clara University School of Law, in February 2000. She authored “The Evolution of PortiaLaw,” in Jurist: The Legal Education Network (September 2000).

JOAN O’SULLIVAN, assistant professor, served as a panelist on both the “Elder Law Education: Clinics, Courses and Concentrations,” and “Legal and Ethical Issues in the Progression of Dementia” at the “National Aging and the Law Conference,” in Arlington, Va., in October.

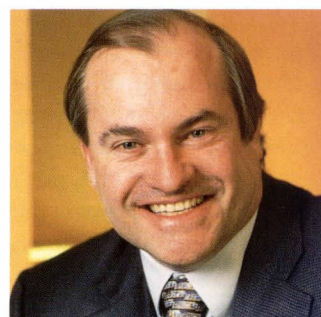

ALAN HORNSTEIN, associate dean and professor of law, co-authored Maryland Evidence—2002 Courtroom Manual (with Glenn Weissenberger); and “A Match Made in Maryland: Howard Chasanow & the Law of Evidence” (with Nichole Mazade), 60 Maryland Law Review 315 (2001).

SHERRILYN IFILL, associate professor, presented “Constructive Disenfranchisement: The Problem of Access & Ambiguity Facing the American Voter,” at the “Temple Political & Civil Rights Law Journal Symposium,” in Philadelphia in October.

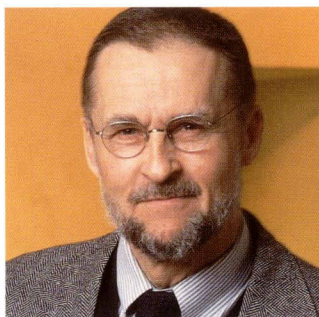

TRICIA O’NEILL, assistant dean for student affairs, published the “2001 Select Committee on Gender Equality Retrospective Report.” The Select Committee on Gender Equality is a joint bench-bar committee appointed by the president of the Maryland State Bar Association and Chief Judge Robert M. Bell. The 2001 report is a 10-year follow-up to the “Special Joint Committee on Gender Bias in the Court’s Report,” which O’Neill helped publish in 1989.

ROBERT PERCIVAL, director of the Environmental Law Program and professor, presented “The Cost-Benefit State,” at the 2001 annual meeting of the American Bar Association, Section of Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice, in Chicago in August; “Environmental Risk Regulation: How Safe is ‘Safe?’” at the annual meeting of the Federal Administrative Law Judges Conference, held in Rehoboth Beach, Del., in September; and “The Impact of Lorillard on State and Local Regulation of Tobacco Sales and Advertising,” at the American Bar Association CLE National Teleconference in October.

TOM PÉREZ, director of the Clinical Program and assistant professor, presented the following: "Legal Framework Surrounding Cultural Competency in Health Care," at the American Public Health Association annual conference in Atlanta, Ga.; "Civil Rights and Welfare Reform," at the "Welfare Reform Ends in 2002: What's Ahead for Low- and No-Income Families?" conference sponsored by the School of Law in October; "Preventing Discrimination Against Physicians of Color," at the annual conference of the National Medical Association in August; and "The Current Status of Affirmative Action in Higher Education" at the "2001 Annual Nickens Symposium on Diversity in the Health Professions," sponsored by the Association of American Medical Colleges and the Institute of Medicine.

GARRETT POWER, professor, presented "Smart Growth: Lessons From Planning History," at the "Ninth National Conference on American City Planning," in Philadelphia in November.

PETER QUINT, professor, co-authored Der Vereinigungschock—Zehn Jahre danach—Zehn Jahre danach, Eine vergleichende Betrachtung [The Shock of Unification—Ten Years After. A Comparative Examination] (with Wolfgang Schluter) (2001). He also authored "International Human Rights: The Convergence of Comparative and International Law," 36 Texas International Law Journal 605 (2001).

WILLIAM REYNOLDS, professor, presented "The Finality of Child Support Orders," at the "Eastern Regional Child Support Conference," in Nashville, Tenn., in May 2001; and "Ethical Issues in Child Support," at the "National Child Support Enforcement Association Annual Meeting," in New York in August.

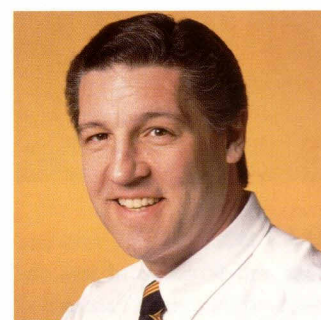

KAREN ROTHENBERG, dean and professor, served on panels for "Health Care Law and Litigation," at the "4th Annual Advanced ALI-ABA Course of Study," in Washington, D.C., in October; and "Legal Education in the Twenty-First Century," at the University of Virginia School of Law, 175th Anniversary Conference "Law Schools, Lawyers, and the Future of American Law," in Charlottesville, Va., in October. She presented "Genetic Discrimination: Legal, Political and Religious Implications," at the Hadassah Attorneys Council Meeting in Washington, D.C., in July. She has been selected to be a member of the Government Relations and Student Financial Aid Committee of the American Bar Association, Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar for the 2001-2004 term.

STEVEN SCHWINN, assistant professor, received the 2001 Award for Long-term Commitment as a Volunteer Attorney from the Washington Legal Clinic for the Homeless.

MARIN SCORDATO, visiting professor of law, published "Federal Preemption of State Tort Claims," 35 U.C. Davis Law Review 1 (2001).

JANA SINGER, professor, presented "Marriage Promotion as a Welfare Reform Strategy: Concerns and Opportunities," at the conference "Welfare Reform Ends in 2002: What's Ahead for Low- and No-Income Families?" sponsored by the School of Law in October. She also was appointed to the editorial board of the Family Courts Review (2001).

RENA STEINZOR, professor, published "EPA and Its Sisters at Thirty: Devolution, Revolution, or Reform?" Environmental Law Reporter (September 2001).

LAWRENCE SUNG, assistant professor, published "On Treating Past as Prologue," 1 Journal of Law Technology & Policy 75 (2001); and "Stranger in a Strange Land: Biotechnology and the Federal Circuit," 2 Washington University Journal of Law and Policy 167 (2000). He presented "Patent Law Update" as the plenary session speaker at the 2001 annual meeting of the American Intellectual Property Law Association in October.

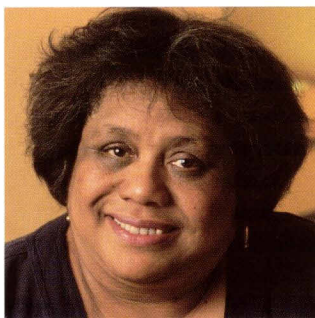

EDWARD TOMLINSON, professor, authored "The French Experience With Duty to Rescue: A Dubious Case for Criminal Enforcement," 20 New York Journal of International and Comparative Law 3 (2000).

MICHAEL VAN ALSTINE, visiting professor of law, presented "The Costs of Legal Transitions," at the "Constructing International Intellectual Property Law: The Role of National Courts Symposium," at the Chicago-Kent School of Law, Chicago, in October.

KATHERINE VAUGHNS, professor, was appointed chair of Legal Education and Bar Admissions Section's Diversity Committee for 2001-2002.

MARLEY WEISS, professor, presented the following: "The Trade-offs on Mobility of Capital and Free Movement of Workers: Comparative Insights Into Regional Integration Processes Within Europe and Within North America," at a conference co-sponsored by the International Network for Transformative Labor Law of the Americas and the Instituto de Investigaciones Juridicas of the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México in Mexico City, Mexico, in October; "The North American Agreement on Labor Cooperation (NAALC): Model or Marginal?" at the New York University "54th Annual Conference on Labor in New York," in May 2001; "Reflections on the Impact on Domestic Labor Law and Industrial Relations of the Regional Integration Process in Central Europe," at the University of Vienna Law School, Vienna, Austria, in June 2001; "The Trade-offs on Mobility of Capital and Free Movement of Workers: A Perspective From the Periphery on Regional Integration Processes in Western and Central Europe," at the University of Vienna Law School, Vienna, Austria, in June 2001; and a revised version at the "International Law & Society Conference," in Budapest, Hungary in July 2001.

VIRGIL WIEBE, visiting professor of law, published "Footprints of Death: Cluster Bombs as Indiscriminate Weapons Under International Humanitarian Law," 22 Michigan Journal of International Law 1 (Fall 2000).