LUNCHEON HONORS THOSE WHO'VE ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIPS

DEC. 12, 2001

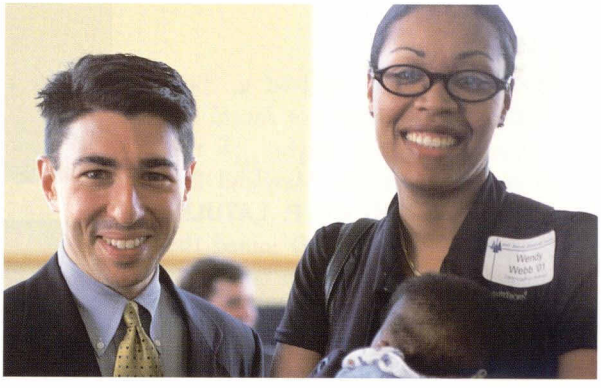

The School of Law began a new tradition of honoring those who support the School's scholarship program and recognizing the accomplishments of past and present recipients. With more than half of the School's students receiving financial aid, these endowments are crucial to the recipients' pursuits of a legal education. The law school community is grateful to the donors who have given generously to benefit outstanding law students.

MENTORS OFFER GUIDANCE TO FIRST-YEARS

While professors and course titles may change over the years, graduates and current students always will share some of the same first-year highs and lows. School of Law alumni mentors offer new law students guidance during the period of adjustment to law school. In addition, mentors offer students glimpses into practicing law in the real world. Mentor-student relationships benefit alumni by providing them with a way to stay connected to the School.

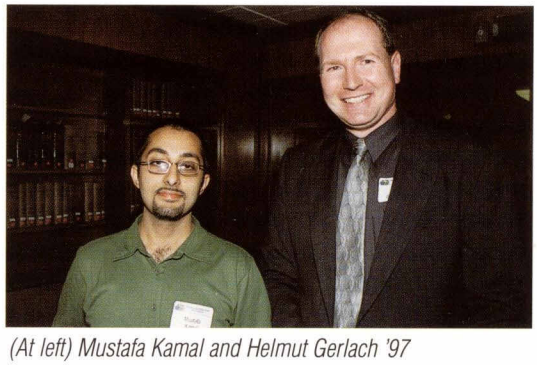

The School of Law is grateful to the following alumni who served as mentors this year.
