Hamish Scott Osborne '86 A PASSION FOR LIFE AND PHILANTHROPY

MARYLAND CAREY LAW LOST A DEAR FRIEND, HAMISH SCOTT OSBORNE '86, ON SATURDAY, JULY 30, 2016.

"I can't think of Hamish without smiling," reflects Dean Donald Tobin. "Hamish was a person who was full of life, energy, passion and love. His love of life was contagious, and I left every conversation with renewed passion, interest, and motivation."

A loyal supporter of Maryland Carey Law, Osborne chaired both the Law School Fund Board and the Maryland Law School Club, and he served on the Board of Visitors and the Alumni Board. He exemplified what it means to be a volunteer leader by helping the law school grow its alumni programs while empowering students to become the best lawyers they can be.

"His love of life was contagious, and I left every conversation with renewed passion, interest, and motivation."

Osborne and his wife, Christy, established the Osborne Scholarship at Maryland Carey Law in 2005. With eight beneficiaries to date, the scholarship provides full tuition and fees for an outstanding student, enrolled full-time, who is engaged in a professional career at the time of application to law school. The endowment ensures that Hamish Osborne's legacy continues to encourage future lawyers to come to Maryland Carey Law and have the same opportunities he enjoyed while here.

"None of what I've been blessed to achieve would have been possible without the generosity of people willing to support the educational endeavors of students they don't know. There is no way that I could have afforded to attend the School of Law without the generosity of Hamish and Christy Osborne," says Bryan Saxton '09, the inaugural Osborne Scholar.

"The Osborne Scholarship has provided a tremendous legacy and his scholarship recipients are already making their mark on the profession and society," adds Tobin. "We are truly lucky that one of his passions was the law school, and that he chose to bestow his energy and love on the school and its students."

Born in Bucks County, England, Osborne received his BA from the University of Arizona, where he met his beloved wife, in 1970. He had a successful career in the federal government prior to applying to Maryland Carey Law, where he earned his JD in 1986, and went on to practice law in Columbia, Md. until his retirement.

Osborne was also a known philanthropist. After a double lung transplant at the University of Maryland Medical Center in 2013, he and his wife established the Hamish S. and Christine C. Osborne Professorship in Advanced Pulmonary Care at the University of Maryland School of Medicine in order to support the needed research into pulmonary fibrosis, which the school estimates claims around 40,000 lives every year.

"His passion and love will live on in all of us and in the future generations that will receive support from his philanthropy," says Tobin.

Osborne is survived by his wife of 47 years, Christy, and their three children, Jennifer, Andrew, and Matthew '03, and 12 grandchildren. He is also survived by his sister, Kristin Rohr.

Prof. J. Joel Woodey

he was one of the very first teachers of the latter. Joel's true academic interest, however, was the ancient world, especially Egypt. He knew everything about the ancient Egyptians, and loved to talk about them at length and at any time. He could even read hieroglyphics. His was truly an infectious enthusiasm."

William L. Reynolds

Jacob A. France Professor Emeritus of Judicial Process

"His in-class demonstrations of a multi-dimensional universe were a challenging and powerful metaphor for appreciating different perspectives in looking at the world of law, and the world more generally. He was a pioneer in bringing the development of legal skills—especially interviewing, counseling, and negotiation—to professional legal education. The law school is a richer place for his having been a part of our community."

Alan D. Hornstein

Professor Emeritus of Law

"I had the pleasure of sitting in on several of Joel's classes in his seminar on ancient law. But I think it was not ancient law, but a living thing for him. He did not just talk about a widow's mite, he shared the coin itself with the class. Indeed, he brought to every session one or more objects from the ancient world that we could touch and marvel at. From the code of Hammurabi to that of Justinian, he knew them well and loved them all. And we loved him."

David Bogen

T. Carroll Brown Scholar and Professor Emeritus of Law

DESCRIBED BY HIS COLLEAGUES AS GENEROUS, CREATIVE, AND A REMARKABLE LECTURER, PROFESSOR J. JOEL WOODEY, WHO TAUGHT AT MARYLAND CAREY LAW FROM 1969 TO 2001, PASSED AWAY MAY 17, 2016:
