Fourth Circuit Holds Court at School of Law

On January 29th, 1997, Judges Murnaghan, Niemeyer and Motz of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit visited the School of Law to hear arguments in Vitello v. J.C. Penney Co., Canady v. Crestar Mortgage Corp., Jones v. SEC, and Mayo v. Ricoh Corp. Held in the Moot Court Room before a large audience of students and faculty, the cases covered a variety of legal issues. The students enjoyed the interplay between the judges and the attorneys, and were grateful for the opportunity to observe appellate advocacy at such a high level. After the arguments, the judges and their clerks joined the faculty for lunch hosted by Dean Gifford.

Back row: Professors Garrett Power, Ted Tomlinson, and Associate Dean Mark Sargent, Professor Dan Goldberg and Dean Donald Gifford. Seated: Judges Paul Niemeyer, Francis Murnaghan Jr. and Diana Motz.
