Table of Contents

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.law.umd.edu/mjil

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://digitalcommons.law.umd.edu/mjil/vol28/iss1/1

This Front Matter is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@UM Carey Law. It has been accepted for inclusion in Maryland Journal of International Law by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@UM Carey Law. For more information, please contact smccarty@law.umd.edu.
MARYLAND JOURNAL OF INTERNATIONAL LAW
Volume 28 2013

SYMPOSIUM
EXTRATERRITORIALITY POST-KIOBEL:
INTERNATIONAL AND COMPARATIVE LEGAL PERSPECTIVES

KEYNOTE ADDRESSES

Kiobel and the Multiple Futures of Corporate Liability for Human Rights Violations
Ralph G. Steinhardt .................................................................1

Kiobel v. Royal Dutch Petroleum: A Practitioner’s Viewpoint
Marco Simons ..................................................................................28

ARTICLES AND ESSAYS

Extraterritoriality and the Rule of Law: Why Friendly Foreign Democracies Oppose Novel, Expansive U.S. Jurisdiction Claims by Non-Resident Aliens Under the Alien Tort Statute
Donald I. Baker ..................................................................................42

Kiobel: Muddling the Distinction Between Prescriptive and Adjudicative Jurisdiction
Anthony J. Colangelo .........................................................................65

Extraterritoriality, Universal Jurisdiction, and the Challenge of Kiobel v. Royal Dutch Petroleum Co.
Vivian Grosswald Curran ...................................................................76

The Alien Tort Statute as Transnational Law
Jaye Ellis ...........................................................................................90

Human Rights Litigation and the National Interest: Kiobel’s
Application of the Presumption Against Extraterritoriality to the Alien Tort Statute
Jonathan Hafetz ................................................................................107
The Contradiction Between Alien Tort Statute Jurisprudence and the Continued Immunity of U.S. Officials for Acts of Torture Committed Abroad

Jules Lobel .................................................................................................................................................. 129

Kiobel, Extraterritoriality, and the “Global War on Terror”

Craig Martin .................................................................................................................................................. 146

Kiobel, Unilateralism, and the Retreat from Extraterritoriality

Austen L. Parrish ......................................................................................................................................... 208

Kiobel and Extraterritoriality: A Rule Without a Rationale

David L. Sloss ............................................................................................................................................... 241

Extraterritoriality and Human Rights After Kiobel

Beth Stephens ................................................................................................................................................. 256

COMMENTS

Frozen Embryo Disposition in Cases of Separation and Divorce: How Nahmani v. Nahmani and Davis v. Davis Form the Foundation for a Workable Expansion of Current International Family Planning Regimes

Ceala E. Breen-Portnoy ................................................................................................................................ 275

The Challenges of Delivering International Humanitarian Aid in a Post-9/11 Global Framework

Catherine Gonzalez ..................................................................................................................................... 311

Harmonizing All Around the World: Re-evaluating the Copyright and Treaty Powers in the Post-Golan Era

Derrick Wang .................................................................................................................................................. 328